

Manufacturing firm donates furniture to hospice

Wilsden-based James Spencer & Co Ltd has continued its support of Manorlands.

The firm has donated reception furniture to the Oxenhope Sue Ryder hospice.

The donation is the latest to the home over many years by the health-care furniture and equipment manufacturer.

Company chairman Richard Spencer said: "Manorlands is on our doorstep and, as a leading provider to the care sector, we are keen to support its sterling work in specialist palliative care wherever possible."

Manorlands' care service manager Stephen Davison said the hospice was grateful for the help received from James Spencer over the years, particularly with a recent major refurbishment. He added: "Our patients and their relatives really appreciate the new entrance and reception area, as well as all of the other improvements we've been able to make."

Pictured are James Spencer's commercial manager Nick James, right, and Manorlands' care service manager Stephen Davison, relaxing in reception furniture donated by the company.

